Vast, Various, and Vibrant

Welcome to India, land of vital contradictions. The world’s most populous democracy, India has one of the fastest growing economies in the world—and one-third of the world’s poor. Eighty percent Hindu, it is a steadfastly secular country. Deeply agrarian, its urban populations are second only to China’s.

We’ll encounter many such complexities as we explore remarkable cities, villages, marketplaces, palaces, and temples that dot India’s fascinating landscapes. After visiting Delhi and Agra, we’ll travel by bus and train to Punjab, where we’ll visit Amritsar, home to the Sikh Golden Temple, and Chandigarh, Le Corbusier’s modernist capital city. In Rajasthan we’ll take in the haunting landscapes of the Great Indian Desert and the “Blue City” of Jodhpur, with its imposing fifteenth-century Rajput fort and superb Jain temple. Finally, we’ll fly to Mumbai, India’s cosmopolitan melting pot, with its Victorian Gothic and Art Deco architecture, bustling film industry, and humming streets.

We’ll be led by Porus Olpadwala, professor emeritus of city and regional planning and dean emeritus of Cornell’s College of Architecture, Art, and Planning, whose themes will be India’s political economy, economic development, and the built environment. Throughout, Porus and his wife, Deenaz, will lend a warm personal flavor to our tour as they reflect on changes to their homeland.

Belgium

A Feast of Flemish Art and Culture

Tiny Belgium has produced an astounding wealth of art, from fifteenth-century panel paintings by Hans Memling and sixteenth-century genre scenes by Pieter Bruegel the Elder to powerhouse works by the Flemish Baroque master Rubens. Join us as we visit the Rubens House in Antwerp; Saint Bavo’s Cathedral in Ghent, home to Jan and Hubert Van Eyck’s 1432 Ghent Altarpiece; Bruges’ Groeningemuseum, the collections of which comprise six centuries of Flemish and Belgian art; and the Royal Museums of Fine Arts of Belgium in Brussels, where we’ll view remarkable collections of old masters, fin-de-siècle art, Magritte, and a great new attraction: Bruegel. Unseen Masterpieces.

We will immerse ourselves in all of these treasures in the company of our faculty leader, Stephanie Wiles, director of Cornell’s Herbert F. Johnson Museum of Art. An expert on prints, drawings, and paintings and deeply knowledgeable about the old masters, Stephanie will intensify our appreciation of the art we see in museums, churches, and cathedrals and will share our pleasure in the architectural and cultural heritage of Belgium—up to and including its waffles, chocolate, and beer.

Springtime in the Desert—Wildlife, Ecology, and Petroglyphs

The desert of southern Arizona teems with blooming cacti and wildflowers, prairie dogs, roadrunners, Gila woodpeckers, stripe-tailed scorpions, bobcats, javelinas, and so much more—and who better to explore it with than skilled Cornell ecologists and wildlife biologists Cole Gilbert and Linda Rayor? After starting our adventure in the Red Hills Mountain District of Saguaro National Park West, we’ll dedicate a full day to the 98-acre Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, a spectacular zoological park. Later, we’ll explore the Rincon Mountain District of Saguaro Park and Sabino Canyon by tram and on foot, discovering some of the most spectacular landscapes and mountains in the American Southwest.

Farther north, we’ll visit the Casa Grande Ruins to learn about the ancient Sonoran Desert people, whose culture dates back to 5,500 BCE and who created a prehistoric irrigation system and distinctive red-on-buff pottery. Their descendants, the O’odham tribe, are hospitable and giving people, known for their extraordinary basket weaving. In Phoenix, we’ll tour the Heard Museum, enjoying its prized collections of the art and artifacts of the Hopi, Navajo, O’odham, and Zuni.

Join us for this springtime feast for the senses.
New York, NY

A Spring Theater Weekend

“The point of theater,” says English playwright Lee Hall, “is transformation: to make an extraordinary event of ordinary material right in front of an audience’s eyes.” We will explore such transformations, weighing their effects and themes as we enjoy three of the best new productions on and off Broadway.

Honing our understanding of the plays we’ll see will be CAU superstar Glenn Altschuler, whose enduring interest in contemporary American theater will be clear in his skillful lectures and our lively discussions.

We’ll begin with an afternoon session at the Cornell Club, followed by dinner and an evening performance. On the following two days, we’ll meet in the morning for a lecture and discussion, enjoy lunch together, and attend a Saturday evening performance and a Sunday matinee.

The program fee includes everything but hotel, Saturday dinner, and breakfasts—so make reservations at the Cornell Club if you’re a member, or choose a hotel, a friend’s couch, or your very own bed. Reserve your space with a deposit, make final payment for the program after Glenn selects the plays, and then join us as we immerse ourselves in the liveliest of the arts in spirited New York.

Glenn C. Altschuler is dean of the School of Continuing Education and Summer Sessions and the Thomas and Dorothy Litwin Professor of American Studies at Cornell.

The Israeli-Palestinian Conflict Up Close

More than seventy years after the establishment of the state of Israel and the collapse of Palestinian society, resolution of the conflict over the territory from west of the Jordan River to the Mediterranean appears increasingly remote. Ross Brann, a wonderful intellectual guide and delightful travel companion, will lead our multifaceted study of what some have called the “mother of all problems.” From our base in Jerusalem, we will study the terrain of the region; meet with Israeli and Palestinian scholars, government officials, journalists, activists, and private citizens; and visit think tanks and educational and cooperative ventures engaging Jews and Arabs.

We’ll explore the Old City of Jerusalem, with its Jewish, Christian, and Muslim holy sites; Yad Vashem, the national Holocaust memorial and museum; Al-Quds Arab University; the Diaspora Museum, the “White City,” and the Peres Center for Peace in Tel Aviv; and Manger Square and Herodium National Park in and near Bethlehem. We will also visit Ramallah in the Palestinian Territory to meet with Palestinian researchers and representatives. We will examine the history of the conflict as seen by Israelis and by Palestinians, the current problems standing in the way of a resolution, and the multiplicity of positions held by Israelis and Palestinians regarding their future.

After the Habsburgs—Authoritarianism and Democracy

From the fifteenth to the twentieth century, the Habsburg Empire was an extraordinary experiment in cultural diversity, stability, and political decentralization. However, when the monarchy collapsed at the end of World War I, the region embarked on a period of chaotic changes: new states, including Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, rose and fell; wars broke out; and democracies turned into dictatorships (and vice versa). At various times in the past 100 years, Habsburg lands have been dominated by Germany, the Soviet Union, and the European Union.

Cornell Government Department professor Valerie Bunce will illuminate for us this region’s tumultuous politics of the past hundred years as we explore the Austro-Hungarian Empire’s three most important cities—Prague, Vienna, and Budapest. These modern capitals are rich repositories of Habsburg art, architecture, music, and cuisine. As we enjoy their cultural offerings, we’ll learn about each city’s distinctive history, modern politics, and hopes for the future.

Valerie Bunce is the Aaron Binckendorf Professor of International Studies and a professor of government. She holds a PhD from the University of Michigan.

Inside the Smithsonian with Curators and Conservators

Enjoy an insider’s tour of three of the Smithsonian Institution’s remarkable museums and research centers, led by CAU favorite Glenn Altschuler.

The splendid National Museum of African American History and Culture is architecturally breathtaking. As founding director Lonnie Bunch III says, “The African American experience is the lens through which we understand what it is to be an American.” The National Museum of Natural History, the third most visited museum in the world, holds 126 million specimens of plants, animals, human remains, meteorites, and cultural artifacts. And at one of the fascinating research centers, we’ll have access to some of the extensive Smithsonian collections not currently on display.

Like our previous Smithsonian program, this one will be replete with exciting, customized behind-the-scenes meetings with the people who curate and take care of these precious collections. During site visits, Glenn’s lectures, and discussions, we will learn many of the ways the Smithsonian shapes and reflects our collective sense of national identity.

The Gulf of Maine

A Naturalist’s Outing at Shoals Marine Laboratory

Appledore, the largest of the Isles of Shoals archipelago, is home to the Shoals Marine Laboratory. An extraordinary teaching and research facility collaboratively operated by Cornell and the University of New Hampshire, the laboratory is devoted to marine research opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students and faculty from Cornell and other universities.

The waters, rocky shore, and vegetation of Appledore and its neighboring islands host migratory songbirds, wading birds, and shorebirds; hundreds of harbor and gray seals; a rich intertidal and subtidal zone; and deep water that supports fish, whales, seals, and dolphins.

In early September, as migratory flocks gather and a lowering sun still warms the Gulf, CAUers will boat to this naturalist’s paradise. We will sail out to watch whales and pelagic birds, explore the distinctive biological and historical treasures of the isles, band birds, and learn of the more than 600 fishermen who lived on Smuttynose Island and caught, cured, and shipped 150-pound cod to the Catholic countries of Europe from the sixteenth through the eighteenth century. We’ll also learn about others who made their homes here, from Native Americans to poet Celia Thaxter and artist Childe Hassam.

Southern Italy, Sicily, and Malta

A Cruise of Classical Culture

On this voyage we’ll encounter rich layers of civilization as we sail along the coast of Italy and on to Sicily and Malta. Our faculty leader for this cruise is Michael Fontaine, Cornell associate professor of classics, whose talks (e.g., “How to Live Like an Emperor”) will focus on classical Greek and Roman societies of the area and the literature they inspired. Indeed, most of southern Italy was part of Greece, at least culturally, until fairly recently. We’ll begin with calls in two of the favorite playgrounds of the aristocracy of imperial Rome—Sperlonga and Capri—where echoes of emperors Augustus and Tiberius are everywhere to be seen. Then we move to the medieval world of Amalfi, Ravello, and particularly Palermo, where the influence of Byzantium on the Norman Kings of Sicily is clear in the churches and palaces of this vibrant city. Syracuse offers an exceptional combination of Greek and Roman ruins, while on the Maltese island of Gozo we’ll step into the misty reaches of prehistory at the nearly 5,000-year-old Ggantija Temples.

Our home for the voyage will be Ponant’s Le Champlain, a spanking new, deluxe, five-star small ship. Our days will be filled with spectacular destinations and fine lectures, as well as sun-drenched relaxation, companionable talk, and excellent food.

A Great Migration Safari

Join us on a journey into one of the richest ecological regions on Earth, as we set out in Land Rovers and on foot to explore Tanzania’s heart-stoppingly beautiful bird and animal habitats amid the unspoiled landscapes of the northern, eastern, and central Serengeti. October is the peak of the dry season and also the annual wildebeest migration, so most of the animals will congregate near the few remaining water sources. The famed Mara River in northern Serengeti will attract the largest herds of wildebeest and zebra at this time of year, and we’ll observe predator–prey interaction and some amazing river crossings.

At the Eastern Serengeti Nature Refuge, we’ll enjoy guided walks, Maasai village and school visits, night drives, elephant encounters, and seminars with conservationists. We’ll round out our safari with visits to the Central Serengeti and its big cats and to Ngorongoro Crater with its diverse wildlife.

Leading our great migration adventure will be David Toews, expert birder and evolutionary biologist, postdoctoral fellow at Cornell’s extraordinary Lab of Ornithology, and one of Canada’s prestigious Banting Fellows. The accommodations for our tour are the Rivertrees Country Inn near Arusha and extremely comfortable private tent camps in the eastern and northern Serengeti and in the Serengeti National Park. We’ll end with two nights at award-winning Gibb’s Farms, of which previous CAUers have asked, “Is this Eden or is it Heaven?”

The 2018 Midterm Elections—A Weekend Seminar

With the body politic more bitterly divided than at any point in recent history, the 2018 midterm elections could prove to be another pivotal moment in American history. Will Republicans retain control of the House and/or the Senate? Will we prioritize immigration reform? trade? health care? international relations? No matter our political points of view, many of us will be eager to convene before the elections for informed lectures and illuminating conversation.

CAU favorite Glenn Altschuler will bring to bear his well-honed analytical skills as he talks about the cultural and ideological context of the election. Joining Glenn will be Gretchen Ritter—government professor, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and member of the Council on Foreign Relations—drawing on her command of issues of democracy and citizenship in American politics. On Sunday, both she and Glenn will offer predictions about winners and losers.

All of our lectures, lively discussions, and conversations over meals will take place at the majestic Mohonk Mountain House, whose splendid surroundings we can enjoy during a stretch of free time on Saturday afternoon.

Galapagos and the Andean Highlands—A Family-Friendly Expedition

Combining the natural history of the Galapagos Islands with the rich culture and history of the Andes, this exhilarating itinerary covers two very different aspects of Ecuador. Our adventure begins in Guayaquil with an extraordinary city tour of notable archeological, art, zoological, and recreational sites. We'll then fly to Baltra Island and settle into our comfortable accommodations on board Santa Cruz II. We'll explore and snorkel on Isabella Island, home to cormorants, penguins, fur seals, and boobies. We'll visit Fernandina Island, with its marine iguanas, sea lions, and flightless cormorants; Puerto Ayora and its Charles Darwin Research Station; Santa Cruz Island and its tortoise reserve; and Champion Islet, with its extraordinary assemblage of birds and sea turtles. Wonderful for adults and families, this Galapagos tour is replete with extraordinary creatures and chances to swim and snorkel, sometimes among them.

After disembarking, we'll fly to the highlands, where we'll stay at a spectacular seventeenth-century restored hacienda and resort, perfect for hiking and relaxing. At journey's end, we'll return to Quito for a tour of the remarkable Rose Plantation. Deepening our understanding of Galapagos's role in inspiring Darwin's theory of evolution is faculty leader Scott Taylor—an exceptional evolutionary biologist, expert on birds (particularly sea birds), and lively travel companion.

Havana and Washington—Renewed Relations

Cuba and the U.S. startled the world when they announced their agreement to normalize relations after a half-century of hostility. On this trip, we’ll contemplate the changes that this renewed diplomacy might inspire for both countries!

In Havana, our Cuban guides will introduce us to the city’s haunting beauties and sites important to our interwoven pasts. On two day trips, we’ll visit Matanzas, the “Athens of Cuba,” and the sunny landscapes and caves of the Valle de Viñales.

Eminent Cuban scholars will talk with us about how Cuba is changing—politically, socially, and economically. Our faculty leader, Cuban-born historian Maria Cristina Garcia, will shed light on what “normalized” relations might mean going forward. All the while, we will experience Cuba’s music, its architectural splendors, and the warmth of its people, even perhaps drinking a toast to Hemingway at his favorite bar, El Floridita.

Nature and Human Nature

The southernmost country in Africa is a study in contrasts, from wide-open savannas teeming with wildlife to multi-ethnic cities with complex sociopolitical histories.

Led by Cornell ecologist Adriaan Dokter, we’ll visit important cultural sites in Cape town, including the colorful Bo-Kaap community and the cell where Nelson Mandela was imprisoned on Robben Island. We’ll also enjoy tours to Table Mountain National Park, Cape Peninsula, and the penguins of Boulders Beach.

On safari at Thornybush Game Reserve, we can expect to see rhinos, elephants, lions, leopards, and many other species of animals and birds. We’ll venture out on dawn and dusk game drives and nature walks, led by trained guides, rangers, and trackers, and at night we’ll enjoy air-conditioned comfort and five-star accommodations.

We’ll conclude our tour in Johannesburg, where we’ll enjoy the art and markets of Maboneng and visit history-rich Soweto to learn about the struggle to end apartheid.

Activity Level

Easy. Walking is generally over level ground for short distances. May require ability to climb stairs or to stand for periods of time.

Slightly strenuous. May require extended walking over uneven ground as well as the ability to climb stairs and to stand for considerable periods of time.

Moderately strenuous. Assumes the ability to walk for more than a mile over terrain that is sometimes rough, with varying elevations. A good sense of balance and athletic shoes or hiking boots are essential, and walking poles may be desirable.

Strenuous. Designed for those who are fit and accustomed to negotiating hilly, rough terrain. Hiking boots are essential, and walking poles may be desirable.

Standard Inclusions

Program charges include all lodging during the program; meals specified on the itinerary; site visits; entrance fees; guides; any internal train, bus, or air travel; emergency medical-evacuation insurance on international trips; all taxes and gratuities; management services; and the full educational program.

Standard Exclusions

Program charges do not include international airfare; visa and passport fees; luggage, cancellation, and accident insurance; meals and beverages not specified in the itinerary; and personal expenses such as laundry, telephone calls, faxes, and e-mail service.

Travel Cancellation Insurance

We strongly advise you to purchase travel cancellation insurance in case you cannot go on a trip for which you’ve registered. Unexpected changes in travelers’ lives, newer and more restrictive airline penalties, earlier and larger nonrefundable payments to tour operators and hotels, and volatile times make such insurance particularly wise. CAU can rarely recover monies we have paid in your name after the full payment deadline.

How to Register

Register online at cau.cornell.edu or use the form in the back of this brochure. If you have questions please contact our office at 607.255.6260 or cauinfo@cornell.edu.

CAU CRUISING THE ATLANTIC
During an onshore expedition, CAUers explore a cave complex on Monte Castillo in Spain.

CAU IN ARIZONA
We walk the Island Loop at Walnut Canyon while discussing gravitational waves, habitable zones, and inflation.

CAU IN THE ARCTIC CIRCLE
Six hundred miles from the North Pole, intrepid CAUers, with faculty leader Scott Taylor, take a dip in the Arctic waters.
CAU ON THE CROATIAN COAST
From a high overlook, we gaze over the beautiful town and harbor of Hvar Island.

CAU IN THE GALAPAGOS
Dare you! One after another, CAUers jump from a height of more than twenty feet into the water to celebrate the end of our adventure.
Plan now to make CAU part of your summer!

CAU offers inspiring weeklong programs on the beautiful Cornell campus every summer. You can study subjects ranging from cooking and gardening to art, politics, and world affairs with engaging Cornell experts and in the company of bright and congenial classmates.

CAU also offers programs for kids (ages three to fifteen) that combine entertaining, educational activities with all the fun and friendships of a great camp.

Ours is the only university program in the country that offers such a wide range of options for all members of the family. So come on your own, with your significant other, with friends, or bring the kids and grandkids. We look forward to seeing you next summer!

“Once again, the quality of this experience far surpasses my expectations. And given how high my expectations are—wow! I am reminded that the quality of an education truly cannot be measured.”
